

Children Policy

DownFare aggregates flights, hotels, tours, and stays from multiple suppliers. Age categories and pricing for children are set by the airline, hotel, or property you book with — not by DownFare directly. Below is how we classify travelers by default, and what to check before you book.

Default Age Categories (Flights)

Unless a specific airline states otherwise, DownFare applies the IATA industry standard:

Category	Age Range	Notes
Infant	0–23 months	Must travel on an adult's lap unless a seat is purchased separately
Child	2–11 years	Requires own seat; fare and baggage allowance may differ from adult fare
Adult	12+ years	Standard adult fare and allowances apply

Individual airlines may define these ranges differently. Always confirm the child/infant age rules for your specific airline at checkout before completing payment.

Hotels, Stays & Vacation Rentals

Each property sets its own child policy — including:

- Minimum age to book or check in without an adult
- Age at which a child is charged as an additional guest
- Whether cribs, extra beds, or free stays for children are available

These details are shown on the property's listing page prior to booking. If a property does not display a children's policy, contact DownFare support before booking to confirm directly with the host or hotel.

Tours & Transfers

Age requirements and pricing for children on tours and transfers vary by operator and are listed on each activity's booking page. Some tours may have minimum age requirements for safety reasons (e.g., adventure or wellness experiences).

Unaccompanied Minors

DownFare does not independently manage unaccompanied minor services. If a child is traveling without an adult, contact the airline directly after booking — most carriers require advance arrangement, additional fees, and airline-specific paperwork for unaccompanied minors (commonly ages 5–14, though this varies by carrier).

Questions

If a child's age category isn't clear at checkout, or a supplier's policy conflicts with what's shown on DownFare, contact DownFare Support (downfare.com/contact) before completing your booking.

This policy is provided for guidance. Final age classifications, fares, and eligibility are determined by the operating airline, hotel, or tour provider.
